Jenny Guberman

CHATTAHOOCHEE CATS

When Jenny moved to Atlanta more than a decade ago with 10 rescue cats, she built them a home in her backyard, full of amenities, including heat and air conditioning. With her grandchildren she relished the cats' antics and created rich stories involving their beloved pets. Chattahoochee Cats, dedicated to animal lovers and rescuers everywhere, is a delightful tale about where these energetic cats went in the wide world, teaching children along the way about other countries and self-reliance. It also teaches octogenarians that it is never too late to publish your first book.

Jenny Guberman is a longtime cat rescuer. She grew up in Connecticut and on a cattle ranch on Arizona's Verde River. Now living in Atlanta, she loves creating new stories with her grandkids on early morning rides to school, as well as occasional rafting trips down the Chattahoochee River. When it comes to cats, she melts.
